Austrian low-cost airline, Lauda, starts the new direct connection from Athens to Vienna.

Lauda offers daily connections from Athens to Austria's capital. On Sunday the 27th of October, the Lauda Airbus A320 took off for the first time from Athens and flew to the Austrian capital.

Vienna was voted the most livable city on the planet for the tenth time in a row. There is no better time of the year to discover Vienna's world-renowned art, culture and culinary delights than in autumn and winter. Visit the Schönbrunn Palace, St. Stephen's Cathedral or one of the numerous exhibitions by national and international artists.

From the middle of November, until late December Vienna's beautiful squares transform into a magical Christmas wonderland with numerous markets popping up across the city. Alternatively enjoy a quiet relaxing weekend break in one of Vienna's glamorous hotel's and enjoy all the charm of this historical city at a more leisurely pace.

To celebrate the launch of this new route, Lauda offers an unbeatable deal – 19,99 € (one-way) from Athens to Vienna. You can find and book the entire Lauda flight offer on www.laudamotion.com or via our Lauda app for iOS and Android.

Lauda CEO Andreas Gruber said "We are delighted to offer our passengers a new non-stop service from Athens to my hometown Vienna and expand our route network. Lauda allows passengers to explore the most livable city in the world for an unbeatable price."
